This also permits an agency to bypass the requirement to publish an initial regulatory impact statement. HCFA concluded that publishing a proposed rule in this case was both unnecessary and contrary to the public interest. HCFA asserted that it was unnecessary because the revised inherent reasonableness regulations did not significantly change the underlying inherent reasonableness methodology. The inherent reasonableness methodology already in place when the interim final rule was issued called for replacement of the standard payment amount when application of the statutory payment methodology resulted in a Medicare payment amount that was grossly excessive or grossly deficient and thus not inherently reasonable. These existing inherent reasonableness regulations described the factors to be used in determining when a Medicare payment amount is grossly excessive or deficient and in establishing a realistic and equitable payment amount. The revised regulations did not materially change these existing regulations. 16 This is the good...
