Ther same!; the pelice shot a nate little howl in the ould man last night. Bad luck to them! Car. What was he doing? I ve been a bad man, Mike, but Saul Hendricks has been ten times worse. Mike. He was dodging the beaks with a mighty purty lady what he was a takin ter board. He had been boardin her at the sylum, but somehow her husband got on the scent an come down on the sylum with a lot er beaks. But it happened that the ould man an his nephew, Nick, was makin a call on the mad doctor, an they got off with the leddy, but not before Hendricks got a chunk er lead. Car. The lady, Mike, I must see her! Mike. Hey! Car. Can t you manage to bring her here? Mike. I suppose I might, but Nick is sot in that direction. Car. (groaning) Oh, if I could live, how much evil I would undo; but my repentance has come too late. Mike, I ve been writing. Mike. Yes, an a mighty bad job it is for ye too! Ye ll be for having another hemorrhage. Car. These papers are for Sweetbrier. Everybody had supposed her my child, but she is not. Mike. What! Car. She is not mine. Her father was Ralph Lindsey. Ralph had a twin brother, Roscoe, who looked much like him; but Roscoe was a bad one, and in a fit of anger struck his mother so that she never recovered...
